How divisions in Church show need for synodality

by Sarah Mac Donald

The current aggressive polarisation within the Church shows how important it is to re-establish synodality as a form of ecclesial life and leadership, the international Catholic reform group, We Are Church has said.

Separately, the leaders of three international Catholic reform groups including We Are Church International, along with Catholic Church Reform International and Spirit Unbounded, have said that for the Church to be synodal bishops will have to accept a new model of authentic co-responsibility with the laity.
